

the beauty of a single complex entity lies in the ability to present multitude views of itself not in the rigidity of an exclusive singular representation and if God possesses much more than indefinite complexity how can one glorify one's own sight of Him and abhor the visions of others how can one trust his inability to perceive not-so-high-dimensional entity to understand the infinite dimension of God multiple two-dimensional projections of a single Hessian polytope in the complex space