

life is a self-composed movement and a disconcerted symphony transformation from one repelling form to another attracting one constant tension between repelling points perpetual feud between attracting points life is — chaos in this order